Glen-Coa Gleanings

Mr. and Mrs. Dahl of Minnesota have been recent visitors of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Pedel. Mrs. Dahl is an old friend from England whom Pedels had not seen for many years. You can well understand there was much happy reminiscing of past days and doings in the Old Country.

A carload of Camrose college alumni motored to Viking last Sunday afternoon for a reunion with others from surrounding areas.

Sharon Luther League often wait awhile but they do not forget. Thus it was that last Monday evening they descended upon Mr. and Mrs. Frank Goddard (nee Joan Mackay) in their little home at Wainwright. After a long, fatiguing frolic followed. Original songs about the country were duly composed and sung. Then Mrs. Erickson, League president, presented Joan and Frank with a gift from the League. Joan had been a member and officer of the Luther League prior to her marriage. She was always willing to do her share in song whenever asked. After expressing their thanks and appreciation, Joan and Frank extended an invitation to their guests to come again, but it probably would be advisable to do so in smaller groups. A bountiful lunch brought the happy occasion to a close.

Card of Thanks

I would like to thank all the friends at Irma who have sent me cards, letters, flowers and fruit and by their many kindnesses helped to make my hospital life much brighter for me.

Sampson moved that financial statement as presented be accepted and that the following accounts be passed for payment amounting to $3407.66.

Easterly Echoes

To swath or not to swath, that is the question. The wheat on many farms is ready but the ground and atmosphere are in a very unsatisfactory damp condition. A few birds are at work now; makes one stop to consider the merits of the old fashioned methods. The owners and operators of combines are tuning up their machines, anxious to get this late harvest rolling.

Mr. and Mrs. Ford Appleton have been visiting with the latter's brother, Mr. Jas Bell.

Hugh McLaughlin is staying with his aunt, Mrs. E. Fenton while attending high school in Irma.

Coronation: The name of Edna Clark in the school beginners list should have read Edna Clark.

Estevan man back after two-year stay on Baffin Island

Victor Lundin, elder son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Lundin of Estevan, returned recently from a two-year term at Clyde River, Baffin Island, where he was the officer in charge of the Rawlinsdale station. Located on the Government of Canada's Clyde River is located 350 miles north of the Arctic Circle and the latitude and longitude are 70 degrees and 25 minutes north and 69 degrees and 33 minutes west.

After two months' holiday he will go to Victoria, B.C., where he will be stationed with the Canadian Government ship "Stone-town" doing the same type of work. The ship will go out from Victoria about mid-June and return to Estevan about the same time.

Mr. Lundin left Estevan in 1949 with the meteorological station. He had a short course in Edmonton before going to the north in July, 1952. His work at the Rawlinsdale station consists of sounding of the upper air, temperature, humidity and winds about by radio transmitter. A balloon, six feet in diameter is let off twice daily. It has a radio transmitter attached which transmits back to receiver equipment which picks up signals sent out by the instrument sent up and converts it to a mechanical impulse which is recorded on charts in the office. Temperature, humidity, etc., are recorded in the upper air and these are used for weather forecasts for upper winds and temperature for use in commercial aircraft, etc.

This equipment also takes elevation and a math readings. Wind direction and speed can be figured for every 100 foot level above the station. The station is 68,000 feet above sea level. Also is recorded the temperature, humidity and winds aloft at the various levels.

There were seven members of the Dept. of Transport at Clyde River for four months. One constable, one RCMP constable and a Hudson's Bay post manager and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. William Hall formerly of Scott, Sask. Mr. Hall's two brothers, Bert and Jim live in Estevan. The only other inhabitants were about 30 Eskimo families living in and around the post.

The snow usually starts the end of August. Mr. Lundin said the harbor of sea water freezed over early in November and there is about 100 hours of daylight until January 25 when the sun starts to get visible. The light period of 24 hours of sunlight commences around May 24 and starts to recede around the middle of August.

Aircraft can make landing by water in all seasons except winter months, not in the summer and there is no means of communication with the outside world except by radio. Mail is scheduled once a week. There are no telephones in the house in which 17 families participated. The catch won a fishing rod for Orville Forrest.

In August Mr. Lundin left for Estevan they were experiencing 24 hours of sunlight and he saw his first northern lights. They had little rain during the summer and no thunder or lightning. The average summer temperature is 35 above with some days as high as 55. The average winter temperature is 30 below zero with the coldest being -54 below. There are no trees growing at Clyde river but there are 53 different kinds of Arctic vegetation.

Mr. Lundin experienced an eight-day excursion trip during the winter when he accompanied the Eskimos on a 100 mile hunt by dog sled. He slept in igloos in the tundra and wore the caribou clothing of the natives.

Among the souvenirs Mr. Lundin has to show are sealskin slippers, carvings of ivory and two large white bearskin rugs. He hopes to be posted back north again.

LOYALTY

You can't buy loyalty, they say: I bought it though, the other day. You can't buy friendship tried and true: Well, just the same, I bought that too.

I made my bid and on the spot Bought love and faith, and a whole job lot Of happiness, so all in all The purchase price was pretty small:

New homes record set in Canada

The number of new homes completed in Canada in the first six months of 1954 reached a record level although starts during the period lagged behind last year.

The bureau of statistics reported recently that January-June completed 41,572 units an increase of 2,081 or 5.2 percent over the 1953 figure of 39,491. However, half-year starts dropped to 46,398 from 46,746 a year ago, a decrease of 348.

The number of housing units under construction at the end of June was 64,262, an increase of 1,471 or about two percent over the same period in 1953.

Housing units completed in June totalled more than 90 percent from 6,900 in June of 1953. Increases in the case of very rare diseases like cholera, plague and smallpox. The old regulations called for placarding of 13 diseases, including polio, diphtheria, scarlet fever, whooping cough and others.

For example, under the new code, it is mandatory that quarantine placards be issued in the case of cholera, plague and smallpox. The new regulations make it optional whether to issue placards for diseases other than the three mentioned if he is convinced that such a measure would assist in the control of a communicable disease.

Under the new regulations the isolation periods for many of the diseases have been altered. In the case of polio, the old regulations required that the stricken patient be isolated until complete recovery from clinical symptoms as determined by the attending physician but now it is not necessary for a patient to be isolated until 21 days after the onset of the disease.

The new rules call for isolation of a polio patient for seven days or until the body temperature returns to normal, whichever is the longer time.

The new regulations call for quarantining of polo contacts for 10 days. But this provision did not apply to wage earners whose work did not bring them into contact with children or the public food supply. This is the case for polo contacts under the new regulations although they are to be kept under medical surveillance for 21 days after the last known contact and immediately isolated at the appearance of any symptoms.

OUR COMPLETE SHORT STORY

RUT

By MICHAEL TIFF

BILL MARTEN ate his cornflakes as usual. As usual, he drank his coffee, but this time it was scalding hot. He tried to sit it without burning his lips; at the same time he thought: Mary did have her hands full, what with "cleaning the three-room apartment and doing the heat to squeeze her expenses down, the limits of her narrow budget.

"Bill Marten, if you'd only go up to your boss and demand a raise. If you'd only—"

Bill had to press his teeth together to keep from talking. Not that he felt angry, but he might say something he regret.

Mary was washing dishes in the sink. "Other women can afford a maid," she said. "At least part time. But not Mrs. Marten."

Bill did not drink his coffee, did not even look out front page of the morning paper. Presently, he approached his wife, kissed her, as always, gently on the cheek; then he started toward the door. As always, he said, "I'll be home at six."

"Of course. You'll be home at six. And you'll finish supper. At eight you'll finish reading the paper. At ten you'll finish listening to the radio. At—"

The front door closed softly. She took the remaining dishes from the sink, noticed the coffee in his cup, the paper undisturbed. She shrugged.

Well, somebody had to remind

Agent: "I see you're driving a new car."

Inspector: "Yes, I tried to sell an insurance policy to an automobile salesman."

The father of triplets called up the police to report his son had run over the event.

He recalled how bad he had been when he was a boy, particularly when he was a boy.

He had walked away so deliberately. She stopped rubbing the woodwork and rested on her knees, a wisp of confusion creeping into her mind. She had often heard of husbands being hen-pecked. She laughed a frightened little laugh.

She tried to go on with her work, but the apartment seemed strangely empty. It did seem filled up when Bill sprawled in that easy chair, one long leg over the other, smoking his pipe and listening to the radio—the radio they had brought together that first day after their honeymoon—ages ago.

Nearly through with the cleaning, there was Bill's dresser in its customary state of disarray. Almost empty, she had to rearrange his things in the half-opened compartments. Then her hands grew limp, lay motionless on the top of the dresser. She was looking at Bill's suitcase, which rested against the wall behind her. Afterward, she turned to the front of her, hitherto, since then returned from the honeymoon, that suitcase had been reposing, hidden away in the back of the closet. She could see, too, that its old leather had been cleaned and oiled and there was a new buckle on one of its straps. Mary felt weak.

She didn't dare move cleaning. In the corner of the eventful room was something she did do eagerly. She kept looking at the clock. "He'll be home at six," he had said. Besides, he'd have to pack first. Bill was too sensible to run errands.

At six he came in and said, "Hello, dear," as if nothing was happening.

Mary beamed at him. She wore her best dress.

"You seem different," he told her.

"Bill, remember how you used to eat potato pancakes? Well, I've made them for you—all you can eat. Look—darling!"

Her hands trembled as she set the platter of pancakes down before him.

"Bill, if there's anything else..."

"Mary—I don't deserve this. After what's happened at the office."

"Eat your pancakes, dear."

"Sorry, what I'm trying to tell you—is, well, business is not so good—oh, I'll pick up, you understand—but the firm was forced to cut our wages—and I'm back where I started."

Mary's eyes still shone. "Bill, the pancakes will get cold."

The doorknob rang. She murmured, "Don't move, darling." She hurried off. A moment later she reappeared and announced, "An Ed Brown is waiting to see you."

Ed Brown had promised to lend him my suitcase."

Former Sask. girl receives appointment at university

SASKATOON—"The family is still the most important basic unit of society and it is in the home that the group work, play and grow together," is the belief of Kay Taggart, formerly of Regina and Swift Current. Miss Taggart was recently appointed assistant professor of home economics at the University of Saskatchewan. She also believes that it is of the utmost importance that the home should be beautiful, comfortable and a convenient place for the family to live.

Miss Taggart, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. J. G. Taggart of Ottawa, was formerly the home planning advisor at Eaton's College, Silver Toronto, under the professional name of "Kay Kipling". Dr. Taggart is the federal deputy minister of agriculture. At present Miss Taggart is studying interior design at Parsons School of Design in New York, which is one of the foremost design schools on this continent. Miss Taggart will join the staff early in September.

Professor Taggart also has a word for young women interested in the field of home economics. She says it is important for every girl in the field of home economics to know as much as possible about the buying, care, use and arrangement of the furnishings of the house to provide an efficient environment for the family. Also there seem to be many business opportunities opening up now for girls who have some training in interior design.

Will hold figure skating championships

REGINA—Dates for the North American figure skating championships will be held at the Regina Stadium on March 15th and 16th. Mr. McGuiness said the figure skating would be very colorful, a distinct contrast to the provincial as another Jubilee year event. Other sports events to be held in the province next year include the Macdonald Brier, the junior track and field meet and the national boxing and wrestling championships.

Competing in the North American figure skating event will be the various state and regional champions of the United States and Canada.

design, so if she is interested in a career before marriage this training will be a tremendous help. Miss Taggart began at Swift Current and graduated from Regina Central Collegiate in 1941. She then enrolled in the college of household science at the University of Saskatchewan until 1943 when she joined the interior design division of the Royal Canadian Navy. She returned to the university in 1945 and received the degree of bachelor of household science in 1946. Miss Taggart then went to work in the housing and design department of Cornell University and received the master of arts degree in 1949. From 1949 until 1951 she was on the staff of the Women's Institute Branch and Home Economics Section of the Ontario Department of Agriculture as supervisor of home furnishings. In 1951 she became home furnishing specialist for Canadian Wallpaper Ltd., Toronto, and in August, 1953, became home planer advisor at Eaton's, College Street, Toronto, under the professional name of Kay Kipling.

WANTS ADS DO BIG WORK

Local News

Miss Susie McKay left on the flier on Sunday night for Toronto. She will study for her master's degree in social work at Toronto University during the year.

Misses Olive and Vera Mikelson of Edmonton are visiting here with their mother and other Irma relatives.

Mrs. Bert Long has purchased the house formerly owned by Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Halverson.

Mr. Charles Dootson of Liverpool, England, who has been visiting here at the home of his nephew Wm. Dootson leaves Irma this week-end. He will sail for Liverpool on the S.S. Ascania on September 22. Mr. Dootson seemed to enjoy his visit to Canada—he went out to see relatives at the west coast and made for himself many friends at Irma. We wish him a pleasant journey home.

Mrs. McNeil of Belmont, Ont., sister of the late Mrs. J. A. Archibald is visiting with the Archibald families at Irma. Mrs. McNeil, with her niece Mrs. Herbert Larson, were Edmonton visitors this week.

The second square dance for this season will be held in Kiefer's hall on the evening of Sept. 22 at 8:30 p.m. A good attendance is requested. Anyone wishing to join please contact members of the square dance club.

We have all heard and read about the work of Mr. Billy Gusham. The color film being shown at Kiefer's Hall on the evening of September 21 will be an opportunity for us all to get a better idea of how his work is accomplished. Don't forget the date—Tuesday evening, September 21. There will be no admission fee but a free-will offering will be accepted to defray expenses.

The weather of the past week has continued in the same old pattern with more cloudy, damp weather and little sunshine. Not much harvesting has been done yet.

Mrs. Lang at the Irma Drug Store has kindly consented to receive memorial donations to the Irma United Church fund. She will carry on this work for which Mrs. W. N. Frickleton was responsible while living in Irma.

We would like to thank Mrs. J. McKeon of Stockton-on-Tees for the lovely folder of views of the Lake District which she sent us. Mrs. McKeon was on holiday there.

The Irma Branch of the WMS is preparing to send another parcel or parcel of clothing, etc. to Korea shortly. Donations of clothing or money to help pay shipping charges will be most gratefully received.

Mrs. R. L. Eaton who has been in the Wainwright hospital for the past two weeks, is now feeling better and able to return to her home here.

Mrs. K. Coffin is also home from hospital and Mrs. Magrath is expected to be well enough to leave hospital this coming week-end.

Mrs. A. A. Fischer who has been ill at home is also recovered sufficiently to be out of bed.

Mr. and Mrs. C. Pyle are building a new home on their farm north of town.

In 1953 American tourists spent $282 million in Canada. Canadian tourists spent $307 million in the U.S.

From 1941 to 1951 the rural population of Canada increased by 7 percent, the urban population by 32 percent.
